- Inquest into the death of a British man in a Spanish police cell, with a neglect finding. National reporting in both Spain and the UK

Media Law

Keina practises in media law in cases concerning free speech, reporting and newsgathering. She is a pre-publication lawyer at a number of newspapers and accepts instructions on a wide range of media law issues. Keina also has experience of representing NGOs on access to information and surveillance issues.

Recent cases include:

- Rotherham Metropolitan Borough Council v M, F, G (a child) etc [2016] EWHC 2260: acted alone for the Times Newspapers Limited successfully ensuring that the matter was heard in open court. The case concerned open justice, and reporting restriction orders.

- Butkevich v. Russia [2016] (European Court of Human Rights): led by Caoilfhionn Gallagher, for the Media Legal Defence Initiative (MLDI), ARTICLE 19 and the Mass Media Defence Centre, intervening, in this case concerning the arrest and ill-treatment of a Ukrainian journalist when he was covering protests taking place in St Petersburg during the G8 summit of 2006. The case raises serious concerns regarding freedom of expression, and the law enforcement's response to newsgathering, in Russia, and it raises issues about the appropriate approach for the European Court to adopt.

International Human Rights Law

Prior to the Bar, Keina worked as a staff attorney at Women's Link Worldwide strategically litigating women's rights cases (such as BS v Spain). She has helped to organise and been part of a number of Expert Group Meetings with the CEDAW Committee and with the Special Rapporteur on Violence against Women and Girls, its Causes and Consequences.

She is currently instructed in a number of human rights cases both domestically and internationally on issues which relate to indigenous rights and environmental law; LGBT rights; the relationship between state immunity and human rights.

Reported cases:

- Butkevich v Russia (ECHR acting for MLDI intervention)
- AB v United Kingdom (sexual and reproductive rights)
- Angela Gonzalez v Spain (CEDAW Committee, intervention)
